Judge O'Rear Speaks to Large Audiences.

Underwood and Heflin Receive Little Attention in Third District.

Franklin, Ky., Oct. 14.—Judge O'Rear wound up a week's speaking tour of the Third Congressional district with an address in the crowded Simpson county courthouse here this afternoon. The audience was made up largely of farmers, who came from all sections of the surrounding country.

Judge O'Rear has been closely pursued or just preceded at every place in this district, by some visiting Congressman, who appealed to Democratic voters to support their ticket for the sake of its effect on the national election. Congressman Stanley followed him at Greenville and Central City, and Congressman Heflin of Alabama, spoke at Elletts and Franklin the day before Judge O'Rear's date.

Only about a hundred heard the Congressman at Elletts, and there only a score of politicians were present when the hour arrived. The public schools were dismissed, and by ear-must use of the telephone a crowd of respectable size was finally secured.

UNDERWOOD MEETS FROST. Less than 200 people welcomed House Leader Underwood when he spoke at Bowling Green, his boyhood home, in the interest of the Democratic ticket.

Conditions in Simpson are gratifying for the Republican ticket, and the Democratic majority will be considerably cut. A bond issue of $75,000 for county roads will bring out a full vote, which probably will save the Democratic organization from losing the county, as many of its voters would not attend the polls, but for this question.

Judge O'Rear was introduced today by E. H. Black, a merchant of this place, and referred to the arguments advanced by Congressman Heflin as they had been reported to him.

KENTUCKY ISSUE.

"Mr. Heflin, I understand, talked to you about national issues almost exclusively," said Judge O'Rear. "His reasoning may have been profound, and I hope you will keep it fresh in your mind for twelve months, when we will vote upon national issues. This year we are considering State affairs. Our Constitution provides that State and national elections shall not be held the same year to avoid confusion of the issues."

"You plant your corn in the spring and your wheat in the fall. If someone should come around and talk to you about the proper way to prepare the ground and plant wheat in the spring, you might give him respectful attention, but you would not let it interfere with your corn planting, because that is the time for planting corn. So we may listen to their discussion of national issues, but it should not be allowed to interfere with our settlement of State affairs this year."

STATE OR PARTY.

"No doubt," he said, "some people think the party man should vote always to strengthen the national party, and to those who put the party first and party interests highest, such arguments appeal, but to the man who puts the State first and the State's interests highest, that argument does not appeal. We have a Senatorial election this year, and that is used as an excuse for introducing national issues; but let us see how it works out."

"In every election for Governor there is also a Senatorial election, and if we permit it to control, we never shall be able to settle purely local issues, excepting on a national basis. Kentucky is but one of forty-six units, represented equally in the National Senate, and she would have but slight influence and a small vote in getting her own peculiar interests subscribed through national legislation. Judge O'Rear then launched into a discussion of the evils of State Government, growing out of lobby domination. The representatives of the people fail to reflect public sentiment and respond to the public will. Corruption of the law-making body, through offers of place, free passes, small favors, party loyalty and even bribery, he said, has prevented for twenty years' compliance with the Constitution in matters vitally affecting the interests of the people of Kentucky.

Initiation and Banquet.

The Centertown "Pom-pot-mo-t" Rebekah Lodge met at their regular session Friday afternoon and initiated three new members, after which they repaired to the banquet room where a nice lunch was served. The table being decorated in pink and green, the lodge color. Visiting members from Rockport Lodge, were Mrs. Estella Ross, P. G., Mrs. Dekker, V. G., and Miss Beck. The Rebekah's have a fully equipped degree room and are doing excellent work visiting men from other lodges will always meet with a hearty reception. They will give an evening entertainment in a short while for the benefit of the lodge. The laughing feature will be the "Old Maid's Convention." The public is cordially invited to be present.

A REBEKAH.

Average Value of $14.50.

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 16.—Landscapers are valued in Kentucky from $3.35 to $80.07. The poorest land, according to its value in Kentucky, is in Rowan county, and the highest priced is in Fayette county. The values range according to the location, the position being in the eastern part of the State and the richest land being in the central and western part of the State. The total of all the land in Kentucky for taxation is $51,555,518, and the total number of acres 24,223,685, making an average value of land per acre $14.50. The law governing assessments in this State are so defective that when a raise is made on the county it must be on the county as a whole, and in a very few instances these increases in the lands result in hardships, but such is near the case with the good lands.

Gov. Willson May Succeed Harlan.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 16.—There is some talk here that Governor Willson, of Kentucky, and Judge Cochran, of that State, might be given consideration in connection with the recently created vacancy in the Supreme Court.

It is considered highly probable in the event the President seeks a Justice in the Sixth Circuit that he will consider the appointment of either Governor Willson or Judge Cochran. Governor Willson's name has been mentioned in connection with the Supreme Court before, as has that of Judge Cochran.

Three Indiana names have been suggested as possibilities to succeed the late Associate Justice Harlan on the Supreme Court bench. These are Charles W. Fairbanks, United States Circuit Judge Frank Baker and United States District Judge A. B. Anderson.

This talk merely is speculative, as the President is away and no person here has any information on which to predict what will happen. Mr. Fairbanks' name might receive favorable consideration if he cared to accept the honor, but his close friends here believe that he would not accept it.

CERALVO.

Oct. 18.—Mrs. Mary Theory, Dahlgreen, Ill., is visiting friends and relatives here. Mrs. Theory moved from this place twenty nine years ago.

Miss Mattie Helsley went to Bowling Green Tuesday to attend school.

Rev. N. H. Watson filled his appointment here Tuesday. Hereafter he will preach every first Sunday evening.

Mr. W. H. Blackburn has been appointed postmaster here in place of Mrs. Mattie Maddox who resigned.

Favors Good Roads.

Judge O'Rear favors an amendment to the constitution so that the convicts can be worked on the roads. Good! Judge, we are with you.—Elizabeth-town News, Democratic.

Beckham on McCreary.

"His second issue of the campaign is to rally to his support and array against me all of those elements which are angered at me because of my position in enforcing the laws against the desecration of the Sabbath, and my efforts last winter in aiding to secure the passage of the county unit bill, which the General Assembly did pass, and which is now a law of the Commonwealth. For the last two months he and his friends have been active in organizing these forces against me, and I must admit that their work has been successful. A campaign from this quarter has been well planned, and formed for the purpose of accomplishing my defeat in order that it might be a lesson and a warning to all officials in the future against their taking the stand which I did in favor of reasonable temperance legislation, and in insisting upon the enforcement of the laws of the State in reference to Sunday closing."—Extracts from Governor Beckham's speech at Lexington, Ky., August 16, 1906, in his race against McCreary for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator.

Beckham on McCreary.

"Shame, eternal shame, upon such a man, (referring to Attorney General Hayes) and shame, too, upon my honorable opponent, Senator McCreary, who has avowedly formed a political alliance with him, and whom we have a right to presume endorses and approves the campaign of slander and falsehood conducted by that man."

"In the respect which I feel for my opponent and for the integrity and decency of his personal character, I cannot understand why his political ambition with a man who possesses no quality except that of a demagogue, and who is so far his inferior in every attribute that belongs to a man of honor and respectability."—Extract from Governor Beckham's speech at Lexington, Ky., August 16, 1906, in his race against McCreary for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator.

SUIT TO BE BROUGHT AGAINST THE HERALD

Woods Claims Articles in The Herald Reflected on His Character.

Richmond, Ky., October 17.—Mayor C. E. Woods, of this city, today engaged Attorneys Chennault and Wallace to bring suit against the editors of the Hartford, Ky., Herald for the publication on September 27 of an alleged slanderous and defamatory article concerning Mr. Woods' character and political record.

The suit is the outcome of Mr. Woods' published determination to support O'Rear for Governor over his fellow townsman, ex-Senator James B. McCreary.

The Hartford Herald's communication reflected upon Mr. Woods' character in many ways, which are contradicted by the signed statements of the Richmond Clinch, Kentucky Register, Pantagraph and by ex-County Judge John C. Chennault, former owner of the Clinch, all of whom are referred to in the Herald's communication.

Mr. Woods believes that "fair play" is being foregone in the desire to destroy the effect of his criticisms of Senator McCreary's record.

Mr. Woods will continue his support of O'Rear, speaking at Lebanon, his former home, Saturday next, and at Paris next week.

Cyclone Destroys Town.

Danville, Ill., October 14.—Hillsboro, Ind., a village of 880 people, in Fountain county, twelve miles from this city, was wiped from the map by a cyclone at 4 o'clock today, but not a single person was killed and only a few injured. A special train was made up and left the city at 9 o'clock. Every telephone and telegraph wire into the city was down, and the only information is by a courier who was compelled to drive to Vanderburg in an auto and literally pick his way over fallen trees.

According to information in Danville tonight, the cyclone struck the town from the northeast and cut a path two miles wide. It went down the main street, carrying everything before it, and it is said there is not a single building in the place intact.

The loss is estimated at $100,000. Reports from other sections of Indiana, in close proximity of Hillsboro and Vanderburg, indicate that considerable damage was done by the storm.

KENTUCKY'S TOBACCO CROP IN 1909

Over 39 Million Dollars Worth at the Weed Grown in the State.

Washington, October 14.—The census of crops in Kentucky shows tobacco to be the greatest money producer per acre. Census Director Durand issued the statement.

The leading crops of the State for 1909 ranked in order of valuation were: Corn, $50,448,000; Tobacco, $39,869,000; hay and forage, $10,206,000; wheat $8,821,000; potatoes $2,724,000 and oats, $1,218,000. From 1899 to 1909 corn increased 117,083 acres, or 3.5 per cent. Starting with 3,021,176 acres in 1879, corn fell by 1889 to 2,960,232, rose by 1899 to 3,819,257, and again by 1909 to 3,436,340.

Hence, during the thirty-year period corn has made but slight increase. The total yield in 1909 was 83,338,024 bushels; the average yield per acre, 24 bushels; the average value per acre $14.70.

For the decade ending 1909, tobacco showed an increase of 84,990 acres, or 22.1 per cent. Starting with 226,129 acres in 1879, tobacco rose by 1889 to 274,587, to 384,805 by 1899, and again to 469,795 by 1909. The total yield in 1909 was 398,482,301 pounds; the average yield per acre 848 pounds the average value per acre $94.85.

Best He Ever Saw.

The following letter was received by the Junior Editor from Prof. A. D. Kirk, an Ohio county boy, who holds a splendid position in a high school in Louisiana:

Marksville, La., Oct. 12, 1911.

Dear Friend: The industrial edition got misplaced some way, and has just reached my hands. It certainly is a "hummer," old boy. It is simply the best thing I have ever seen in that line.

You're coming down the pike in the style in every way. Keep it up. I'll never see the day I am not a thorough Kentuckian and a full blooded Ohio Countian, and I like every good thing pertaining to the County and State. You are doing fine with The Republican, and am mighty glad to see you doing so. I am,

Very truly yours,

TOBACCO

GREATEST

Crop for Long While and Good Quality.

Some Recent Figures That Will be of Interest to Consumers.

The tobacco crop for 1911, as compared with former years, while smaller than the abnormal ones of 1909 and 1910, is the largest since 1892.

The planting conditions were bad early in the season, as the ground was hot and baked, but the rainy weather later was favorable, and brought the crop around better than the experts expected.

The improvements in the burley crop toward the end of the growing season was quite marked, and after a very poor start during July and August, the plants in practically every section came forward rapidly, bringing about what appears to be a larger yield than was estimated four months ago. A conservative estimate of the burley acreage may now be made as follows: Kentucky 142,653 acres; Indiana 9,670 acres; Ohio 20,766 acres; West Virginia and scattering sections 19,000 acres; total 182,089 acres. The harvested acreage in 1910 was 284,000 acres, and in 1910, 251,897 acres.

A decrease of almost 40 per cent as contrasted with last year is therefore indicated.

Reports from the various sections of the burley belt indicate that the crop has gone into the barns under the most favorable conditions, and is curing nicely. The character of the growing season, however, has made for a heavy, stalky leaf of thick fiber. Computations based on the conditions prevailing at different points indicate a total yield of white burley to 174,485,700 pounds. Last year's production totaled 253,570,000 pounds. Thus a decrease of 83,992,300 pounds, or about 33 per cent, is indicated. Of the 1911 production Kentucky raised 134,812,700 pounds; Indiana, 10,831,000 pounds; Ohio 18,842,900 pounds, and other sections 10,000,000 pounds.

CROP SUMMARY.

Mules Crushed.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Oct. 14.—A pair of mules belonging to Vaughn Bros., of this city, who are building a pipe to Lafayette, were crushed to death yesterday when a bin of crushed stone collapsed just as the mules were driven under it. The colored driver heard the timbers cracking and jumped to safety. The wagon was pushed into kindling wood.

The Newspaper a True Business Barometer.

How quickly you can tell a live town from a dead one by simply looking over its leading newspaper. A poor skim-milk sort of a paper, with a few small advertisements, and those looking as if they were run at half price, betokens a dead town just as sure as a corpse indicates a funeral; while a good, lively, well printed newspaper, filled with good, fresh advertisements and displayed locally, show that the town is prospering and thriving. It never fails. Try it in The Republican and you will find that advertising results profitably.

DO YOU KNOW

One-Seventh, 336,000, of the Population of Kentucky Is Disfranchised and Not Represented in State Legislature?

STUDY THE MAP AND READ THE EXPLANATION BELOW

The above map shows two Senatorial districts in Kentucky, one being the smallest in point of population and Democratic, while the other shows the largest in point of population and Republican in politics. One State Senator is allowed the Democrats for 28,363 population, while one State Senator is allowed the Republicans for 153,610 population, 1910 census. In other words it takes about five and six-sevenths Republicans to equal one Democrat, or 23,400 citizens are disfranchised in the Seventeenth Senatorial district alone. But this is only one illustration of the most outrageous gerrymandering that was ever practiced in any State in the Union. Take the Thirty-third Senatorial district, which is in the mountains and Republican and composed of ten counties, Clay, Floyd, Johnson, Knott, Leslie, Letcher, Harlan, Martin, Perry and Pike, with a population of 145,075. Its area is 3,982 square miles. Compare it with the Twenty-third Democratic district shown on the map.

Then turn your attention to the Representative districts. Here the gerrymandering was even more unprincipled. Hancock county is the Twenty-ninth Representative district with a population of only 5,512 and an area of 195 square miles. It has one Representative in the State Legislature. On the other hand, the Republican Ninety-third district in the mountains, composed of Bell, Harlan, Leslie and Perry counties, has a population of 59,244 and an area of 1,371 square miles, with one Representative.

Taking all the Senatorial and Representative districts, it was shown by a decision by the Court of Appeals that 356,000, or one-seventh, of the population of Kentucky is disfranchised. It was to right such a flagrant wrong as this that Judge O'Rear declared he would keep the Legislature in session for two years, if necessary. Remembering the blood of our forefathers from Lexington to Yorktown, the disfranchisement of 356,000 citizens be expensive at such a cost? IS IT ANY WONDER, IN VIEW OF THESE FACTS, THAT BECKHAM, HALY & CO. HAVE ISSUED ORDERS TO JAMES, McCREARY, McDERMOTT, ET AL., TO BEAT THE TOM-TOM OF NATIONAL ISSUES AND AVOID RELIGIOUSLY ANY DISCUSSION OF STATE ISSUES?

Industrial Edition Recalls
Old Days.

Dream of Things and Extend Road Building—Ohio Co. has the Manhood and Energy.

Pecos, Texas, Oct. 2, 1911.
Honorable Hartford Republican,
Hartford, Ky.

Gentlemen:—Through your Mayor James H. Williams, I am in receipt of the Industrial Edition of the Hartford Republican, and I have read it with interest. The very spirit and manner of its execution carry me back to the time when most of the leading business and professional men were young boys and young men just entering school, when such men as the Hon. H. D. McHenry, E. Dudley Walker, Dr. John E. Pondleton, Judge George, Judge Hubbard, Z. Wayne Griffith and Brothers, Uncle James Thumason, the Hardwick brothers, Judge Baird, Louie Morton, Rev. Gabo Bean, Mr. Paves Ross, and many others of the pioneers whose interesting lives dated back to the very earliest days of the settlement of the grand old Commonwealth of Kentucky; when the old chain of forts were in existence from Virginia to New Orleans, one at Hartford and another at Vicksburg, now Calhoun on Green river—these men composed the early settlers and the best families of Hartford, and many of them helped in building up the State and figured prominently in National politics, and gave to your town and county the prestige and heritage you now enjoy.

When I first entered Hartford, the late Dr. Wayland Alexander was at the head of your schools, assisted by Prof. McHenry Rhoads; Dr. Robert Haines; Hon. Ben D. Ringo and others who are to-day making history in the professional and business world. These men backed by the influence and hearty co-operation of Hartford's splendid citizenship, laid the foundation upon which you are so nobly building today. The society of the town was controlled by the standard set by the teachers and students of the college, thus converting the whole community into one grand educational institution. Among the young men were Hon. John J. McHenry, banker, lawyer and civil engineer; Leon Gibson, F. L. Felix, Dr. Pondleton and brother Charles, Harry Taylor, Dr. A. R. Baird, and many others whose names I do not now recall, and who have gone out in various lines of activity and success. But we have not mentioned the highest and noblest influence of Hartford, and that is the Mothers of many who are now in line and the wives of your leading men of today. Many of them I knew as members of the classes which I had the pleasure of teaching, and I can recall the spirit of your success even better than you dream, for these women never shirked a duty it mattered not how difficult it seemed. These were the literary lights of the young ladies societies and social circles, women of high ideals, and their influence now being manifested in the splendid twentieth century progress of your town and county. And just here I note with pleasure that you are still keeping up your literary culture in the maintenance of the Lytle Library. This is especially gratifying to me, since I had the honor of drafting the first set of resolutions and submitting them to the Ad. Apheans and R. E. Cs.—the two literary societies of Hartford College—who with the assistance of the Faculty, gave entertainments and established this splendid adjunct to your College. I would be pleased to have a report from your Librarian, showing the growth of your Library since leaving my connection with your institution. As many of you know, I have been busily engaged in the hurry and strife of the "business world," and I have drifted with the march of civilization into the great South-western Country, where all is push and development. Where North, East, South and West, center and combine their united efforts in the development of a great empire of itself, an empire which only a little while ago was known as the "Great American Desert," and which now is being made to "blossom as the rose."

And now, gentlemen, while I have not mentioned all your "Old School" I leave it with you to fill in and teach your children the great influence of their wealth of money, and I point you to your own undeveloped and natural resources. Your minerals, stone clays, and vast alluvial valleys with your streams for transportation, and an abundance of water for your power and development. Where North, East, South and West, center and combine their united efforts in the development of a great empire of itself, an empire which only a little while ago was known as the "Great American Desert," and which now is being made to "blossom as the rose."

You have already accomplished two dreams of the past—your railroads and the pike to Beaver Dam. Now extend your road building. You have the stone. You have the clay for roadbeds. You are developing your coal mines, now offer inducements for more people by bringing in more industries, and making accessible your great natural wealth.

You have the young manhood and energy, and no doubt, you are already setting about to accomplish even more than these things, and may success crown your every effort.

—J. W. LYTLE.

KEEP THIS FACT IN MIND.
When the Machine Spell-Binders talk about the large surplus on hand when the Republicans took charge, cite them to the facts in the case herein disclosed.

At the close of Beckham's Administration there was a balance in the Treasury of $1,170,055.72
But there were also outstanding unpaid warrants; claims for materials furnished and for services performed and owing specific appropriations amounting to $1,339,284.00

Or, instead of leaving the Republicans a million dollar surplus, as the Democratic speakers allege recklessly, they really left a deficit on January 6, 1908, of $ 159,223.28

The present administration has paid $3,785,771.80 more to the schools of the State than the last Beckham administration. If they had only paid what Beckham did, there would be a surplus in the State Treasury of more than $2,500,000.00.

STATE FINANCES UNDER TWO ADMINISTRATIONS.
LET THE TRUTH BE TOLD.

The Democrats say that the Republican administration shielded and favored the corporation and business interests and used the State Board of Equalization to increase the taxes of the farmers and country people by raising the county assessments. The following tables, which contain nothing that cannot be verified, show this to be absolutely false:

RECEIPTS FROM WHOLESALE LIQUOR DEALERS.
July 1, 1904 to June 30, 1907 (Democrats) $ 363,225.31
July 1, 1908 to June 30, 1911 (Republican) 628,012.17

Excess receipts by Republicans over Democrats $ 264,786.86

RECEIPTS FROM RESIDENT AND FOREIGN CORPORATIONS.
July 1, 1904 to June 30, 1907 (Democrats) $ 606,876.75
July 1, 1908 to June 30, 1911 (Republicans) 898,324.81

Excess receipts by Republicans over Democrats $ 291,448.06

RECEIPTS FROM STATE BANKS AND NATIONAL BANKS.
July 1, 1904 to June 30, 1907 (Democrats) $ 435,549.82
July 1, 1908 to June 30, 1911 (Republican) $ 549,560.40

Excess receipts by Republicans over Democrats $ 114,010.58

RECEIPTS FROM RAILROADS, FRANCHISE AND TANGIBLE.
July 1, 1904 to June 30, 1907 (Democrats) $1,370,013.76
July 1, 1908 to June 30, 1911 (Republicans) 1,482,456.61

Excess receipts by Republicans over Democrats $ 112,437.85

It will be noted that there was an increase in the collection of revenues under Governor Willson as compared to that for a similar period under Governor Beckham of nearly 73 per cent from wholesale liquor dealers, of 48 per cent from corporations, of 26 per cent from banks and of 8 per cent from railroads while, as a matter of fact the average increase by the Board of Equalization over assessed valuation approved by County Boards was only 32-3 per cent. In other words while the Republican administration was increasing the collections from wholesale liquor dealers 73 per cent, corporations 48 per cent, banks 26 per cent, and railroads 8 per cent, it increased assessments on farmers and other general tax-payers less than 4 per cent.

And now, gentlemen, while I have not mentioned all your "Old School" I leave it with you to fill in and teach your children the great influence of their wealth of money, and I point you to your own undeveloped and natural resources. Your minerals, stone clays, and vast alluvial valleys with your streams for transportation, and an abundance of water for your power and development. Where North, East, South and West, center and combine their united efforts in the development of a great empire of itself, an empire which only a little while ago was known as the "Great American Desert," and which now is being made to "blossom as the rose."

THE HARTFORD REPUBLICAN

Phone No. 22

HARTFORD, KY.

ford (Ky.) Republican contained thirty-eight pages—thirty besides the regular eight pages—and was a fine presentation of the Industries of Ohio county, in which it is published. The most remarkable thing about it is that the work was all done in the Republican office, a big undertaking for a country print shop.—Rockport, Ind., Journal.

WHAT LOCAL CONTEMPORARY SAYS.

Our neighbor, the Hartford Republican, issued a handsome illustrated Industrial edition last week, which was quite a credit to the shop and the county. The work was mainly in charge of Mr. James M. Ross, who did all the soliciting and writing and supervised the special issue.—Hartford Herald.

HARTFORD IS FORTUNATE

The 30-page Industrial Edition of the Hartford Republican on last Saturday was a hummer, and reflects great credit on the owners of that good publication. It was filled with excellent illustrations and write-ups of the county that will remain a standing advertisement long after the edition is forgotten. Hartford is fortunate in having so good a paper as the Republican.—Hancock Clarion.

FARM TOPICS.

The Orange orange can be made a valuable tree for posts if planted in a thick grove. Plant 4x4 feet and cultivate until the trees take the ground and shade out the lower branches. Then use for post timber. They are better, we think, than genuine cedar.

The honey locust is a tree that has become debilitated because it has been improperly used in hedges. It should be planted in selected forms as a shade tree, and the foliage will be in light enough. The tree is fine in expression, leaf and limb, almost like a fern.

A little whitewash on the trunks of the shade trees will make the trees look attractive and give the place an appearance of refinement. The lime in the whitewash will be repulsive to bark beetles and borers for a while.

COST OF HAULING WHEAT.

The United States spends $1,000,000 a day on its roads, and most of the money is literally sunk in the mud," says Logan Walker Page, director of the Office of Public Roads at Washington. The farmer is the man who needs good roads, declares Mr. Page, and the man for whose benefit the government is striving to perfect simple but effective methods of keeping country roads in condition.

The cost of hauling a load of wheat from the farm to the shipping point is often more than the cost of transporting that wheat from the shipping point to Liverpool. Mr. Page declares efficiency of the farm team can be increased anywhere from 20 to 50 per cent, if the road repair and road building work in the country is properly done.

Between $500,000,000 would be saved annually in the United States if every state would improve its main highways to the highest point of efficiency, is one of the striking statements made by Mr. Page.

The improvement of the road increases the efficiency of the farmer's transportation method, opens up new country for local trade, widens the farmer's horizon, brings general prosperity to the local communities, and automatically raises the price of land, he adds.

CHANGING FARM SYSTEMS.

In replanting a farm it is essential that a few fundamental points in farming be kept constantly in mind. (1) The plan should provide a reasonable reward for the labor and capital invested. (2) The fertility of the farm should be maintained or increased. (3) The plan must be suited to the capabilities of the owner for carrying it out.

Changes in the farm system are often deferred because of lack of knowledge of how to replace the farm or because of lack of funds in carrying out new plans, or because new fences, buildings or equipment are called for in the new plan, and because a change frequently requires a readjustment of many of the usual ways of thinking and doing.

In replanting the farm, help may be obtained from visits to successful farms, from farm literature, agricultural papers, the state experiment stations, the agricultural colleges, the United States Department of Agriculture and from agricultural experts.

Profitable farming results from good farm plans comprehending every feature of the farm carefully coordinated and effectually carried out. A good farm plan provides for a reasonable reward for the capital and labor invested and the maintenance or increase of soil fertility, and it must be within the comprehension and ability of the owner to carry out. Successful replanting rests on a comprehensive knowledge of agriculture gained by experience and by familiarity with what is being accomplished by others along agricultural lines, either as observed by personal visits or as recorded in the literature of agriculture.

Farmers' Bulletin 370, United States Department of Agriculture, which can be had upon application to the United States secretary of agriculture, Washington, D. C., more fully explains how to replant the old farm and make it more profitable.

LIME AND MANURE.

Lime can not take the place of fertilizer, nor can fertilizer take the place of lime. Lime with manure will increase the yield and the use of lime without manure may decrease it.

Any land which, when sown to clover and timothy produces in their second obdely redtop and sorrel, will be benefited by use of lime. Apply anywhere from 1,000 to 4,000 pounds or from 15 to 50 bushels. The chief thing is to get finely divided lime into the soil.

RESULTS OF FERTILIZING.

As a result of fertilizers, the Pennsylvania experiment station weighed twenty-four tons of well-cured hay from 5 2-33 acres. The previous year contain portions of this same area yielded at the rate of five tons of hay per acre. The same year the station had two fields of timothy and clover; from one field of nine acres forty-two loads of hay were obtained; from another field of exactly the same soil type eight loads were obtained from twenty acres.

A MIXTURE FOR HOGS.

A Mississippi breeder told his country institute that he always found it profitable to keep the following mixture in a dry place, where his hogs could always help themselves: One wagon load of coal ash, 160 pounds copperas, 1 barrel of lime. A little of each, 50 pounds sulphur, 20 pounds charcoal and soft coal might help.

Mary's Skirt.

Mary had a little skirt, which was so tight it really hurt. She mended along the crowded skirt with two-inch strips, a vision of sweat. Her movements were so very slow it almost as much as didn't go. Her costume was exceedingly warm. 'Twas but a matter of pure form. She couldn't catch a trolley car. Could Mary, pump and chubbly. She couldn't catch an omnibus. But still she caught a hubby.

At Macauley's Theatre.

A sensation followed the announcement that Paul Willatch, author of "The Life of Richard Mansfield," and associated with the famous actor for eight years during his tours of America, had written a drama based on "Thais" which will be seen for the first time in Louisville at the Macauley Theatre, week of October 16th, under the management of Jos. M. Gaites, with Miss Constance Collier in the name part.

Mr. Willatch has closely followed the scenes as they appear in the novel Anatole France, one of the great of living literary workers, is the author of the novel, which became the basis for the opera by Jules E. P. Massenet, which achieved such popularity in this country when sung by Miss Mary Garden.

This book is a magnificent piece of literature, and the opera has many things to follow it of harsh criticism and much that is truly beautiful.

Many thought the dramatization of the beautiful opera would be a thankless one, but Mr. Willatch is a daring chap and Mr. Gaites is what is known as "game," so the production went forward and the outcome is well known for after the first performance "Thais" was a distinct dramatic triumph.

Few operas have been dramatized. Massenet wrote "Carmen" in 1845, but it was fifty years before any one undertook a dramatization of the story for the stage. In 1895 Miss O. E. Nethercole commissioned Henry Hamilton, a British writer, to make such a version for her use, and as all the world knows to-day, it proved as one of the most successful plays ever written by a modern author. Miss Nethercole, alone, has played it over 1500 times, and was the first actress to appear in the part in Paris, although it was 62 years after the novel was written, and it has been one of lost his soul, she suddenly awakes the most popular works in the entire repertory of French operas.

It may have been a recollection of this episode that stung Mr. Willatch to action with "Thais."

As a usual thing however, it is not counted a good business risk to dramatize themes that are familiar with a musical accompaniment. But Mr. Gaites made arrangements with Massenet for the use of his score for orchestral music, so this latter is an important feature of the dramatic "Thais."

"Thais" is a story showing the anachronisms of the ancient Theban desert. The piece takes its name from a beautiful creature, as sinful as she is beautiful. There comes to her a hermit who seeks to convert her from her wicked life. He preaches and prays and endures the temptations that beset Parthol. Finally he yields, but when he has come thoroughly under the influence of "Thais," and has to the new life, has heard his teachings and pleadings and goes to the "White Sisters" on the African shores of the Mediterranean.

Mr. Gaites in addition to Miss Collier, has engaged Tyrone Power to appear in the part of the hermit. And Julian L'Estrange to play the part of Thais's favorite lover.

"Thais" is produced with a wonderfully beautiful scenic investment and will be the treat of the theatrical season. Matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday.

Mail orders will receive prompt attention. If they contain cancelled checks, postal or express orders, payable to Theatre. If parties desire tickets mailed, self-addressed street-one must accompany order, thus avoiding possibility of error. Special attention will be given to all out-of-town orders. Special round trip excursion rates will be given on all railroads. For information regarding fares and schedules of trains consult local ticket agent.

"O'Rear is an anarchist"—A. O. Stanley.

Had you noticed it? The Hartford Herald has another "grouch."

A. O. Stanley is a fine man to denounce Judge O'Rear as an "anarchist."

Read what Governor Beckham said about candidate McCreary five years ago. He is no better now.

The American Tobacco Co. is fighting O'Rear. Will the tobacco growers aid in his destruction?

When you are criticizing a person why not use a little judgment and ask yourself what you would do under the circumstances.

In his speech at the court house Thursday night A. O. Stanley said that Judge O'Rear was an anarchist. The people will show Owsley how much of his stuff they believe on Tuesday Nov. 7.

Stanley and Rhea are a nice pair to send over the State to denounce O'Rear for insincerity on the liquor question. No body can change them however, with being on the fence where liquor is concerned.

All four of the Democratic speakers at Hartford last week abused the Republican party for everything imaginable, but the amusing part about the whole business was that they never offered a single thing better.

We are in receipt of a copy of the Frankfort New Era, published at Frankfort by K. D. C. Watson. It recently embarked in the journalistic field and is well edited and should meet with success in the Capitol City.

In the opinions of the Hartford Herald a person who does not have the same convictions as the Herald they are absolutely no good and "despicable." It apparently never realizes that everyone has a right to his own opinions and beliefs.

The report as given in The Republican of the Democratic speaking has been called "scurrilous and contemptible" by the Herald. Just as we expected, we knew it would never please the Herald, and it need have no fear of us trying to please them.

At the beginning of the campaign the Democratic papers united in saying that we had two candidates for Governor who were above reproach. What has caused such a change in the spirit of their dream? Now, O'Rear is insincere and a demagogue and murderer, so they say.

It was A. O. Stanley who dramatically announced the vote of Henderson county in the Democratic State convention "for Waterson" and again the county unit plank offered by Gov. Beckham. No doubt his speech here last week appalled strongly (?) to the dry people of Ohio county.

The Herald was kind enough this week to inform The Republican of the whereabouts of "Fair Play" who did some of their political writing a few weeks ago. Well, that is all right but remember, Hartford Herald, that you had to ask a member of The Republican force where Mr. Ross was now located.

When McCreary was Governor of Kentucky, from 1876 to '79, he issued pardons to 336 persons for giving or furnishing liquor to minors. Do temperance people want him for another four years? From this it looks like Gov. Beckham was right when he charged five years ago that "every saloon in Kentucky was a McCreary Headquarters."

Over in Logan county where the Rheas control the election board, the Republicans were denied any voice in the selections of election officers. In one precinct a Republican was selected over a protest of the Republican member of the Board, who is openly opposed to O'Rear and who as a buyer of the American Tobacco Co. The Republicans have been compelled to resort to the courts to obtain their rights in that Rhea ridden country.

There is one Democrat in Hartford who was man enough to come to us early last Friday morning and tell us that we had a good paper that week, and he added, of course, that it was all right from our standpoint. He is a man that gives every person a right to their own opinions, and does not fall out with his neighbor because he does not both agree in politics or religion. We will tell anyone his name that cares to know.

Mr. Rhea said in his speech here last week that he was entitled to criticize Judge O'Rear as he himself was a Methodist. We are rabidly informed that John Rhea has not been inside the Methodist church at Russellville in 10 years and that he does not belong to any Church. He is a nice chap to criticize the religion of a Methodist who occupies the high position in his church which Judge O'Rear has attained.

The Booster, a three column journal issued at Beaver Dam last week by T. N. Davis, says:

"Did we hear you say that two beasts trying to devour each other presented a vicious spectacle? Well, how about the snarling that is going on between the Hartford Herald and The Republican."

Never mind, Brother, by the time you are in the newspaper business a few years and get a cussing every day you will get used to all that.

Five years ago Governor Beckham said of Mr. McCreary: "HIS SECOND ISSUE OF THE CAMPAIGN IS TO RALLY TO HIS SUPPORT AND ARRAY AGAINST ME ALL OF THOSE ELEMENTS WHICH ARE ANGRY AT ME BECAUSE OF MY POSITION IN ENFORCING THE LAWS AGAINST THE DESACRATION OF THE SABBATH AND MY EFFORTS LAST WINTER IN AIDING TO SECURE THE PASSAGE OF THE COUNTY UNIT BILL." This is the same McCreary who is now running for Governor on the Democratic ticket.

O'Rear must be a large thorn in the side of the Democracy and the Tobacco Trust. They all jump on O'Rear. Notice the gross reports of the Democratic orators and it is one continuous story. "He criticized O'Rear," "He denounced O'Rear for his insincerity," "He skinned O'Rear," etc. In the meantime, Judge O'Rear is making the most remarkable canvass ever known in Kentucky and in a few other states. Telling the plain truth to the people without abuse or vituperation against any one. Will the people turn against such a man?

In his speech here last week Congressman Ben Johnson criticized the Republican State Board of Equalization for having raised the assessed valuation of property in Kentucky. Of course, he did not tell the Ohio County voters that a few years a Democratic State Board of Equalization made the highest raise ever made up on Ohio County property. He also failed to tell his hearers that Judge O'Rear has announced himself in favor of the repeal of the law creating this State Board of Equalization and that it was created by a Democratic Legislature.

We understand that a great many Democrats are awfully angry at The Republican about its report of the barbecue and in fact just because it does not sit quietly by and say that what the Democrats are doing is just the thing. We expected that a lot of the extremely partisan Democrats would not like it, but look here, why are you not man enough to come face to face to us and tell us? Why do you run around to our back and say all kinds of mean things, but you do not dare to come to us. You can depend on this, when we want to say a mean thing about you we are going to have the courage to go to you and say it that we would not talk at your back.

It was a Democratic Legislature which sought to deprive Ohio county of her voice in legislation at Frankfort by tacking us on to Butler and Edmonson. Thus creating a district with 60,000 population, more than a hundred miles long, while Madison and Meade Counties were each left with a Representative. This infamous gerrymander was set aside by the courts. The coming Legislature will again redistrict the State. Will you vote with this party which sought to disfranchise you? Not only were Republicans disfranchised but every Democrat in Ohio county was deprived of a voice in the House of Representatives by their act, and but for the fact that some Republicans brought suit to set it aside they would still be deprived of a voice in that body.

Before Judge O'Rear opened his campaign for Governor at Elizabethtown, he addressed a letter to every Democratic and Republican newspaper in Kentucky requesting that they cooperate with him in making the contest one noted for its freedom from profound abuse, devoted to a clean discussion of the issues involved. In response to this polite suggestion to the opposition, no man who ever ran for office in the State has met such a torrent of personal abuse. Even his religion has been assailed. He has been repeatedly called "St. Edward" by both Democratic speakers and press. He has been accused of drinking liquor, when he is a teetotaler. It has even been intimated that he might have been instrumental in bringing about the death of Goebel. All discussion of the issues raised by O'Rear have been thrust aside in an effort to destroy the only man who dares denounce the enemies of the common people. If they can blacken his name and reputation with foul lies and fool the people it is all the same to them. Will the voter in the common walks of life help them cruelly his friend?

MC CREARY STOOPS LOW.

Senator McCreary, the Democratic candidate for Governor, has gotten himself into a most deplorable situation and one which should compel him to withdraw from the race for Governor. One day last week he charged that Judge O'Rear had attended a meeting of citizens at the Galt House in January, 1900, almost twelve years ago, and had made a speech in which he favored the use of force and violence in the contest which had been inaugurated by William Goebel to turn Governor Taylor out of office. Mr. McCreary said that he would furnish proof if his accusation was denied, and dared Judge O'Rear to deny it. At the first opportunity, which was at Scottsville, Allen County, on the Monday following McCreary's accusation, which was made on Saturday, Judge O'Rear denounced it as a LIE, PURE AND SIMPLE. That has been almost two weeks ago and Senator McCreary has not yet furnished the proof but is now asking Judge O'Rear to furnish proof of his own innocence. This is the most ridiculous as well as the most damnable attitude in which any public man ever found himself placed. McCreary's idea is that Judge O'Rear should prove his innocence of the charge which he (McCreary) has made on mere rumor. Having called upon Judge Alex Humphrey to confirm his accusation and Judge Humphrey having declined to be drawn into controversy, Mr. McCreary in effect has called upon Judge O'Rear to hunt up some proof against himself. The man who would stoop so low as to make an accusation against his opponent, without any proof whatever in his possession, and fail to furnish any, is unworthy of the support of any man.

Eyes Front, Forward March Kentucky.

(Louisville Herald.)
The sound of the marching of many feet echoes throughout the land. Proud banners of progress toss their crimson and gold in the breeze. In the name of a greater liberty, a larger democracy and a better humanity, the host is advancing.

From historic old Massachusetts in the East, where the Republic was cradled, to the later born but none less glorious California in the far West, the call is heard, and the response comes from a multitude of men and women who have caught the bigger vision of a free contented and prosperous people.

New Jersey, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Kansas, Oregon—these are among the splendid States that are existing in the new movement, which means the overthrow of political bosses and corporate domination, the emancipation of the popular government from the predatory and the exploiter. The grand old slogan of the Republic, "Government of the people, by the people and for the people," is to be reached by this new crusade from the impotent multitude into which it has fallen and made a living actuality—all an ideal, but an ideal in the process of progressive realization.

What is to Kentucky's relation to this great movement? Shall the Commonwealth we love join hands with her sister States and give to them her help in the regeneration of the Nation's politics, or shall it continue to be numbered among the reactionary? Shall we shake ourselves free from the bondage of blind partisanship, breaking the shackles that have been forged upon our wrists by the politicians and their privileged-seeking allies? Or shall we cling to our chains, taking no part in the great work that is being done, having no honorable share in the betterment of our institutions and the prospering of the people's cause?

It is a choice between these courses that is being made today throughout the State, as the voters align themselves behind this or that leader. The vote that will be cast in November means more than a victory for Republicans or Democrats; the party element in it is of least importance. The big issue is, whether Kentucky will go forward or retreat.

Let us look at the attitude of the men who are bidding for leadership.

James B. McCreary, the amiable reminiscence of a passing generation is eager to be your champion.

What does he offer you? Out of his robes of the past he brings forth this and that, well worn with constant use too often redolent of forgotten prejudices and stripes. He has a platform that furnishes at least an excuse for progressive utterance, poor as it may be, but he will not use it.

He asks you to choose him, not because he promises that tomorrow he will lead you into bigger and broader and better things, but because ten, or twenty, or thirty, or even forty years ago such and so took place. He makes no appeal to your reason; he urges upon you no incentive to go forward; but he would stir slumbering passions and awaken bitterness that belongs to the days of Kentucky's strife and shame. His call to you is made, not in the name of citizenship, but of party; not for the sake of progress, but that prejudice may be revived and perpetuated. He does not seek to open your eyes to the wrongs of today and point you to the way of remedy. Instead, he would blind them by the blood-mist of yesterday and quicken the cursed spirit of revenge for a crime that the whole State has long since repented in sack-cloth and ashes. He makes no answer to the ringing challenge of his opponent on the ground of reason; but he attacks his character and reputation, using the blunted weapons of the vicious, old-time politics by which Kentucky has been made a by-word among civilized communities.

James B. McCreary's face is toward the past. He is living in the era in which he was reared and nurtured. He must not be judged too harshly. Rather let the blame be on that clique of politicians which folded him upon the great State and a great part. It is too much to ask that a man whose career is almost at its end, whose course is well-nigh run, should divorce himself from the habits of thought that have been ingrained through seventy years of life, and see with clear vision the new opportunities, the new issues, the insistent demands of a tomorrow in which Nature forbids that he should play in active part.

But truly amazing is the attitude of younger men who support him. His chief lieutenant, E. J. McDermott, the man who, should Kentucky respond to this stirring of his passion and its prejudice, may, in the order of things, become its leader, offers no better promise. He tells us the new ideals are dreams that cannot be realized; he discounts his own platform; he shuffles and dodges on great issues; he gives vent to rhetoric in partisan plea that never rises above the level of the little politician, more concerned for the label on a ticket than the life of the people.

And then, with a party blindness that astounds, he dares to tell the people his party will disown its platform, betray the principles it professes and refuse to do their bidding should it elect a Republican Governor. McDermott has confessed the insincerity of Democracy. He has used his party's shame as a threat. He says, in effect:

"We have promised to take the penal institutions out of politics; we have promised a direct primary system; we have promised war on the corrupt lobby; we have promised legislation for honest elections; but if you elect O'Rear we will not give you these things. He may urge them with all earnestness, but should Democrats control the Legislature we will not grant them. We have promised these convictions not for the sake of

HARTFORD, KENTUCKY.

Kentucky, but for the sake of office.

These are the leaders Democracy asks you to follow. By their own words they stand condemned as unit to lead a great State forward. They neither know the way, nor are they to be trusted. Follow them if you will, but it will be backward into the old rut, the old confusion and the old curses of bossism, corporation rule and lobby exploitation.

But the Republican party offers you a leader with a real message of hope for tomorrow. He has pledged himself to your service; if you let him he will be the executive of the people's will, knowing no voice of authority, but yours. He promises that he will fight for the things that his platform approves. Even though you handicap him with a Legislature of opponents, he declares he will not surrender your cause, he will not quit, he will not say, "I am helpless." He believes he can win your battle against odds, because he believes in you.

The face of O'Rear is toward the future. The face of McCreary is toward the past. As a man faces, so will he lead.

Is Kentucky to join the marching ranks of progress?

In another column of this issue will be found an article headed, "Eyes Front, Forward March, Kentucky." This is an editorial that recently appeared in the Louisville Herald and is truly a great piece of work and should be read by everyone. To read it is to feel better.

While painting the roof of the Rhoads storehouse on Main street last Friday afternoon Mr. William Newbolt received injuries which came very near resulting in his sudden death. Mr. Newbolt was working by himself and was at the end of the ladder near the eave of the roof when the ladder broke loose, letting him fall a distance of about twenty-two feet. A few minutes elapsed before anyone got to him, and then physicians were hastily summoned, and he was carried to his home. Upon examination it was found that three ribs were broken, an ankle broken and his back severely injured. Notwithstanding this he has gotten along better than was expected.

A killing occurred at Hayti, the colored settlement of Hartford, Tuesday night about 7:30 when Buncomb Bender, a well to do and hard working colored man, shot and instantly killed his friend, Tom Castle. It is said that Bender had started to his work at McHenry that night, but came home, thinking that by doing this he would ascertain whether or not things were going wrong at his home, as it is claimed that he had been warned that everything was not as it should be. When he returned home he saw two men near about and with his shot gun fired on Castle, whom he thought was the man of whom he had been warned, but who was his friend. Bender came to Hartford and gave himself up to the authorities, and has been held over to the grand jury, which is in session now.

The exercises began at 4:20 with song, "Kentucky Schools." Next in order was a short address by Prof. E. Y. Allen, principal of the school. He was followed by Mr. L. L. Stewart, who introduced the Hon. Ben Johnson, who was the principal speaker and laid the corner stone. These exercises were followed by the song, "America" and music by the band. In the chest that was placed in the corner stone were placed the names of the Trustees of the school, names of the Trustees of the school, all Lincoln pencils and a copy of the Industrial Edition of The Hartford Republican.

OUR WEEKLY GRUMBLE.

Editing a newspaper in some respect is a good deal like preaching. The gospel truth must be presented in the form of generalities or some fellow will get hit and howl, says a recent writer. Few persons like truth, even in home apathic doses. If it hits them. But while preachers and editors are criticized for what they do say, no one thinks of giving them credit for what they do not say. Yet what they keep to themselves constitutes the major portion of what they know about people. Very many people harbor the belief that newspapers are eager to punish derogatory things. It's a mistake. There isn't a newspaper that could spring a sensation in the community at any time by telling what it knows. There is not a newspaper that does not keep under the lock of secrecy scores of derogatory things which never meet the public eye or reach the public ear. Deciding what not to print is the most troublesome part of newspaper work. How many good stories are suppressed for innocent relatives and for the public good nobody outside a newspaper office has any idea of. In some instances he who files into a passion because a newspaper prints something uncomplimentary has ever reason to feel profoundly grateful to the newspaper for publishing so little of what it knows of him. And oftentimes the loudest bluffer is the most vulnerable to attack. A big noise is often a device employed to cover trepidation. Newspapers put up with more bluffing than any other agency would endure. It is not because they lack courage. It is because they are unwilling to use their power to destroy or ruin unless the interests of society imperatively demand it. It might be well for some people to reflect upon these silent trails and in silent gratitude accept mild admonition lest worse befall them.

GIVE THE PEOPLE MORE POWER

Judge O'Rear's Ringing Appeal For Popular Government.

HE DENOUNCES THE LOBBY

Direct election of United States senators by the people, the abolition of contract convict labor, the destruction of the corrupt lobby and bipartisan control of all state institutions were the principal topics touched upon by Judge E. C. O'Rear, the Republican candidate for governor, in his western Kentucky speaking trip. His views on these vital issues are as follows:

Senator McCreary says we say nothing in our platform about corrupt lobbyists or any other kind of lobbyists operating upon the legislature to affect that body in electing officers, and therefore, he argues to you, that my party convention and that I am in favor of that kind of lobbying to corrupt the legislature in electing officers, United States senators, prison commissioners, librarians or any other officers which the legislature may provide for itself to elect.

He asks me whether I approve the omission from my platform of that feature in his platform. That is a pertinent question, and I am going to answer it, because you are interested in it and are concerned in it. In the first place, I am opposed to the legislature electing any officers save those which serve that body alone. I am opposed to the legislature electing even United States senators. I am for placing it in the hands of the people to elect their United States senators. (Great applause.) I am opposed to the legislature electing that prison commission. It was a mistake in politics to place that power in the hands of the legislature. It was done for the purpose of strengthening and building up a party machine, and has done it. I lay this down as fundamentally true, that the legislative department ought not to be allowed to elect anybody to office save their own servants, such as their clerks and doorkeepers and the like. That all officers ought either to be elected by the people or appointed by the executive department. And for this reason, if no other, that if the legislature is allowed to create an office, and then elect a man to fill it and fix its duties and salary, there being no check upon it anywhere, it is more liable to abuse the power thus given to it than if it were authorized to create the office and fix the salary only, leaving it to someone else to fill the office by appointment or election. That is the American system; that is certainly the Kentucky system. So, when we remove the election from the legislature of any state office, then that clause in Senator McCreary's platform becomes unimportant.

Prison Commission.

While I am discussing that subject, it is pertinent that I should take up with you here the prison commission of Kentucky. Our platform declares that the present method of selecting the prison commissioners is wrong. We affirm that that prison board ought to be a bipartisan body, one-half of one party and one-half of the other. Our platform declares that the convict contract system of labor now under the jurisdiction of that board should be abolished. Senator McCreary's platform provides, on the other hand, that the method of electing the prison commissioners should be changed, that it was wrong. It does not provide for a bipartisan board. It does not declare against the convict contract system of leasing out these poor fellows in these penitentiaries. It leaves the prison commission a partisan board, as now. It merely transfers its election from the legislature to the executive department. That is better than the present system, I will grant you, but it can be made still better. Their platform then goes on to commend, to applaud, to praise the course of the management of the penitentiaries of Kentucky by the present board of prison commissioners.

Let us examine its official record. There was received and expended on account of penitentiaries from Aug. 1, 1908, to June 30, 1911, under the present board (and that board has been in power all that time and has been a partisan board, all of one party, all that time), as shown by the auditor's books, as follows: From the branch penitentiary at Eddyville, there was received into the treasury $678,199.68. There was paid out on account of that branch penitentiary $1,332,671.98, an excess in payments over receipts of $654,472.30.

From the Kentucky penitentiary at Frankfort there was received $2,217,858.99, and there was paid out $2,416,819.60, leaving a deficit of $198,960.61. The total excess of expenditures over receipts is $853,632.91.

Then to the above there should be added the following items which have been disbursed and are part of the receipts for which credit is given, but which were acquired under a former administration of the penitentiaries:

Invoice of machinery on hand Aug. 1, 1908 $3,557.45
Invoice of material in chair

factory Aug. 1, 1908 68,488.89
Owing by Frankfort Chair Co. for goods sold and delivered to them prior to Aug. 1, 1908, 13,512.43
Owing to Kentucky Chair Co. for goods sold and delivered to them prior to Aug. 1, 1908, 5,711.42

Making a total of $148,239.68
The actual excess of expenditures over receipts under the board of prison commissioners, as shown by the auditor's books, is $1,004,863.59. This shows an average yearly excess of expenditures over receipts of more than $77,000. Now, they have commended that administration of these prison commissioners, and say it is a good thing for the state.

Do you think that is good business management? Here is a prison commission elected by the general assembly, its rights and salaries fixed by the general assembly, and the prison commission appoints the friends, the kinspeople, the sons and sometimes the members of the general assembly, to guardships and deputy wardenships and offices of that kind, in consideration of their election, until it has become a veritable graft on the taxpayers of Kentucky. It is infamous, yet they approve it in their platform and say it is all right.

Convict Labor.

We are opposed to the contract system of labor. I have explained in other addresses some of the reasons why. I want to give you one additional reason this afternoon. You are interested in good roads. You are talking good roads. You have adopted a constitutional amendment providing for good roads. It takes something besides interest and talking and constitutional amendments to have them. It takes muscle, it takes work, it takes money to have good roads. How are you going to get the money? You have to subscribe it out of your pockets or you have to pay it in the way of taxes. You are all complaining that your taxes are heavy, but if you are going to build more roads you have to have more taxes or you have to have them built some other way. The present system is obsolete. It won't do. Bad roads are a tremendous tax upon the community. My idea is, instead of running these penitentiaries at a loss of $800,000, which has been made as profits to the contractors, that we turn it to better account by using the men in the penitentiaries for the people of Kentucky. Build road with them, and build good ones. If you can save that million of dollars in building good roads, you will have no trouble in building your three Lincoln ways and your two Jefferson Davys ways, besides any number of lateral and feeding lines through Kentucky, until Kentucky will be famed for her good roads.

There is a provision of the constitution which now forbids working of convicts outside of the walls of the penitentiaries. We would have, perhaps, to adopt an amendment to the constitution to work this out, but let us adopt the amendment and allow the convicts to be worked by the state upon the state's and the counties' public works. The counties could well afford to guard and feed the prisoners while they are working on the county roads. Instead of paying this million of dollars out of your pockets, let it be applied to the building of good roads throughout the state.

McCREARY'S FIRST ADMINISTRATION

Thirty-eight years ago James B. McCreary was elected governor of Kentucky. He had for four years previously been a member of the house of representatives, and for the last two years speaker of that house. He was then some forty-odd years old. He was in a position, by virtue of his age and experience, at least his opportunities, to give to the state the best service of which he was mentally and physically capable, and I assume he did the best that he could, and I want to read you something about his record.

For fear that some of my audience might question my statements, I will read you what Governor Beckham says about it, because Governor Beckham is now standing as sponsor for him. Senator McCreary said, in a speech which he delivered at Georgetown four years ago, when he was a candidate for senator, speaking of his own term of office as governor of Kentucky: "I found a surplus of money in the treasury when I went into office. I have always believed in economy in using the public money, and I believe in saving the taxpayer all I can. The tax on every $100 was then 45 cents. I recommended the legislature to reduce it to 40 cents on the $100, which was done." That is his record.

Here is what Governor Beckham says about it: "What he says about finding a surplus when he went into office and a reduction of the tax rate is true, but let us look at the condition of the treasury and the affairs of the state when he went out of office. He was succeeded on Sept. 2, 1879, by Governor Luke H. Blackburn, a man of truth, and biggest-hearted governor Kentucky ever had. Governor McCreary left the finances of the state in such a demoralized condition that he forced his successor to ask for a restoration of the old rate in order to maintain the credit of the commonwealth. For nearly 30 years he has used that tax reduction as one of his chief political assets, but he has never breathed a word about the unfortunate results it brought to the state treasury."—O'Rear at Benton.

Daffydills.

Now, if the file in a ramping tone should call the daffydill a daffydill. And the monkey wrench a nut from the vis, would the plane just smooth things over?

If the house was full and the water drunk would the hose reel all around. And if the water could speak as they flow, how would Long Island Sound.

If you board a ship at a shore hotel is the tillow that you pay? If a single car weighs several tons how much does the whole subway?

Can a scavenger be a cheerful man when he's always in the dumps? If the water pipes in a dance hall burst would the dancers use their pumps?

If a Harvard careman crows in a shell, in what does the salmon roe? If no grass grows in the frozen North what, then, does the Eskimo?

If a daffydill wins a bubble skirt the lily pad—and back? If a thief breaks into a drugstore do you think that the dogwood bark?

If a parrot can swear can a crocus, too?

This is the frivolous sort of think—that is dubbed a Daffydill.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half a million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear as without fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

LONG CAREER IS CLOSED

Associate Justice Harlan
Dies in Washington.

Kentucky's Noted Son Succumbs
to Brief Attack of Acute Bronchitis.

Washington, Oct. 14.—Associate Justice John Marshall Harlan, whose close of his already noted career as a member of the Supreme Court of the United States, won new fame as the "great dissenter" by his dissident opinions in the Standard Oil and American Tobacco cases, died of acute bronchitis at his home here at 3:12 o'clock this morning. His last words to the members of his family, who stood at his bedside, were:

"Good-bye; I am sorry I have kept you all waiting so long."

Justice Harlan apparently was in the best of physical condition when he came home from his vacation for the opening of court. He felt an attack of acute bronchitis with fever developed. The illness not thought to be fatal. However, until Thursday, yesterday a relapse made it almost certain the Justice could not survive. His family gathered at the bedside at 3 o'clock this morning.

The first message of condolence received came from President Taft, and read as follows:

"Mrs. John M. Harlan, Washington: The sad news of Mr. Justice Harlan's passing away has just reached me. I tender my heartfelt sympathy in your deep sorrow. The country loses a great Judge and Jurist and a most patriotic and valuable servant. He was a brave and effective soldier for the Union in the Civil war. His labors upon the Supreme bench cover more than thirty-four years, and exceed those of any other Judge in its history. May the memory of the service he has rendered and the high place he has held in the hearts of his countrymen help to mitigate the blow to you and your family."

"WM. H. TAFT."

Hundreds of other messages have arrived at the Harlan home during the day.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday at the Justice's home, the Rev. Dr. Wallace Haddock, of the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, officiating.

The Supreme Court will adjourn immediately after convening on Monday.

Justice Harlan served on the Supreme Court thirty-three years, ten months and twenty-five days and had been until next June he would have completed the records of Justice Field, who served thirty-four years, six months and ten days, and Chief Justice Marshall, who served thirty-four years, five months and five days. Justice Harlan was born in Boyle county, Ky., in 1833. When his parents christened him John Marshall, they named him for a great Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, in the hope that some day he might rise to the position which he did hold temporarily until the death of the Chief Justice Edward White.

Justice Harlan was born in Boyle county, Ky., in 1833. When his parents christened him John Marshall, they named him for a great Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, in the hope that some day he might rise to the position which he did hold temporarily until the death of the Chief Justice Edward White.

He became a member of the Supreme Court without a fortune, and at the death left a very small estate.

His devotion to duty was notable. An instance of this trait was evidenced on Wednesday when although appearing in a serious condition, he pushed with his physician to be permitted to attend the session of the Supreme Court the next day, taking them a one of the most important cases, necessitated his presence in the chamber.

There was about him a keen sense of humor.

Candidates to Contrast.

There is the off-olive contrast between the two candidates for Governor made by Mr. John E. Garner of Winchester in his eloquent speech at Paducah, in which without calling names he portrayed Judge O'Rear and Senator McCreary so well that every body recognized the pictures without being told which was which. There is the way Mr. Garner sizes up the two gentlemen:

CANDIDATES IN CONTRAST.

One is positive, active and progressive; the other is negative, passive and retrogressive.

One has the career of us future as in the future; the other has past his career of usefulness.

One is a leader of public opinion; the other waits for public opinion to "blaze the way."

One is for doing some things that are not done, and for undoing some things that are done; the other is content to let most things remain as they are, but if the people think there is too much of any thing he is in favor of reducing it, and if they think there is too little of anything he is in favor of increasing it.

One wants to make an epoch in Kentucky's history; the other wants to round out a lifetime of office in office.

One stands alone for State betterment; the other stands alone for personal preferment.

One asks your vote for what he is ambitious to accomplish; the other asks your vote to accomplish his ambition.

One counts for what he conceives to be best; the other accepts what is ceded to be expedient.

One has a position about every question; the other has a question about every position.

One has a purpose in his objection; the other has his objection as his purpose.

One seeks an opportunity to do something for the State; the other seeks opportunities for the State to do something for him.

One disregarding political consequences said: "This is my view"; the other with obsequiousness said: "My views are whatever you think they should be."

One said that he could not accept any nomination unless they could agree on a platform; the other said that he would accept any platform if they would agree to his nomination.

If his description is fair and accurate, whom should we elect?

You are not experimenting on yourself when you take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a cold as that preparation has won its great reputation and extensive sale by its remarkable cures of colds, and can always be depended upon. It is equally valuable for adults and children and may be given to young children with implicit confidence as it contains no harmful drug. Sold by all druggists.

McCreary Will not Answer.

Judge O'Rear said that if it was wrong for four Democratic bolters to vote for Bradley it was worse for them to vote for McCreary, as they had been doing all along since he had just been defeated for the nomination by Beckham, and if any one was bribed to vote for Bradley it is a self-evident proposition that he was bribed to vote for McCreary first.

Judge O'Rear said he had asked McCreary either to produce letters he wrote to his backers or permit them to produce them, and McCreary evaded the question by saying he had letters from Gus Richardson and Mr. Harris, telling him that he had written them to request that they ask the bolters not to support him.

"Now I have given Senator McCreary every opportunity to call whether he wrote to those four men," said Judge O'Rear. "He evades that question. I now charge Senator McCreary that he did write to those four men after they had bolted Beckham, and thanked them for having done so and for voting for him."

This assertion of party party on the part of the Democratic candidate for Governor was greeted with a storm of shouts and applause.

Wonderful Praise Accorded Peruna the Household Remedy

Mrs. Maria Goertz, Orlenta, Oklahoma, writes: "My husband, children and myself have used your medicine, and we all ways keep them in the house in case of necessity. I was restored to health by this medicine, and Dr. Hartman's invaluable advice and books. People ask about me from different places, and are surprised that I can do all of my household work alone, and that I was cured by the doctor of chronic catarrh. My husband was cured of asthma, my daughter of earache and catarrh of the stomach, and my son of catarrh of the throat. When I was sick I weighed 100 pounds; now I weigh 140."

"I have regained my health again, and I cannot thank you enough for your advice. May God give you a long life and bless your work."

HOUSEHOLD HELPS

FRIED APPLE CHARLOTTE.

Soak four slices of apple bread in water and when soft press very dry. Add to bread three apples pared and cut in small dice, one-half cup of sugar, a dash of nutmeg, and a pinch of salt. Beat two eggs, whites and yolks separately, add and mix all well fry a spoonful at a time in hot fat. Sprinkle lightly with sugar.

TOMATO SALAD.

Cut a small firm tomato into inch cubes, sprinkle with chopped watercress and cover with French dressing. For the French dressing mix one-quarter teaspoonful each of mustard, white pepper and powdered sugar. Stir up four tablespoonful olive oil. Add one tablespoonful vinegar, tablespoonful lemon juice and juice of half a small onion.

SWISS EGGS.

Melt one tablespoonful of butter in an onion pan, add half a cup of cream and slip in, one at a time, four unbroken eggs. Season with salt, pepper and a small amount of cayenne. When the whites are nearly firm sprinkle with three level tablespoonful of grated cheese and cook until the cheese is in. Serve on buttered toast, straining the cream over the whole.

STEWED CORN.

Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add one of flour and cook without browning. Add a tablespoonful of finely minced sweet green pepper and a thin shaving from a clove of garlic. Do not omit the garlic. When the pepper is soft and the flour still white add half a cup of cream and two cups of corn cut from the ear. Cook till thoroughly heated, or about five minutes.

GRAPE BUTTER.

Pick the grapes from the stems and put them into a preserving kettle with water sufficient to boil them soft; then rub through a colander or coarse sieve to remove the seeds. To each quart of pulp add 1-1/2 pounds of sugar; boil very slowly one hour, or until thick like jelly. Stir very often, being careful not to let it burn. Put in stone or glass jars. When cold cover with paraffin and keep in a cool place.

CANTALOUPE FRAPPE.

Remove the seeds from two melons and soup out the pulp. Run through a potato ricer. There should be a pint of pulp. Soften a tablespoonful of gelatin in one-fourth of a cupful of cold water and then set over hot water to melt. Add a dash of salt and half a cupful of sugar to the pulp, with the juice of half a lemon and half a cup of cherry. Stir in the melted gelatin and freeze. Sand to the table in the chilled ring of the melon cut to represent a basket with handle.

TO REMOVE STAINS.

Salute grass stains thoroughly with kerosene, then put them in the wash.

Soak ink stains in sour milk. If a dark stain remains, rinse in a weak solution of chloride of lime.

Soak blood stains in cold salt water; then wash them in warm water, using plenty of soap; afterwards boil.

Rub sewing machine oil stains with lard; let stand for several hours and then wash with cold water and soap.

Wet soot stains, then rub with soap and bleach in the sun.

Wash iodine stains with alcohol, then rinse in soapy water.

Soak iron rust stains thoroughly with lemon juice; sprinkle with salt and bleach for several hours in the sun.

Hot water and soap generally remove grass spot stains. If fixed by long standing, use either chloroform or naphtha, taking care to use none of these remedies near either fire or artificial light.

Soak tea and coffee stains in cold water; wring well; spread out and pour a few drops of glycerin over each spot. Let stand several hours and then wash with cold water and soap.

Stretch the fabric containing fruit stains over a basin and pour boiling water on the stain. If the stain has been fixed by neglect, soak the article in a weak solution of oxalic acid or hold the spot over the fumes of sulphur.

We want to say a good word for the man who meets his small obligations promptly. They are not as plentiful as they should be and the man needs encouraging. Most men will pay but fewer will pay promptly. Almost any firm will testify that, counting the time, postage, booking, to use it costs all some accounts are worth to collect them, and still the man owing it to them is perfectly responsible in a financial way. It very often happens that the worst sinner in this particular is the best able to pay.
